THE GLADIATOR CODE

Victory without honor is only another form of defeat.

peace.

Champions could defeat any enemy, but without a common purpose, the Arena would eventually become another battlefield.

The Elders of Valekor, together with the First Gladiator, wrote a set of principles that no fighter could break.

Thus was born the Gladiator Code.

It was not a law.

It was an oath.

Every gladiator had to speak it before entering the Great Arena for the first time.

THE LAW BORN FROM PEACE

WHY THE CODE WAS WRITTEN

The Arena needed more than rules for combat. It needed a standard of character strong enough to protect kingdoms from pride, cruelty, and conquest.

1

Honor before victory.

2

Protect the innocent.

3

Respect even the enemy defeated.

4

Fight for your kingdom, not your ego.

5

True strength is born from discipline.

THE FIVE PRINCIPLES

THE PILLARS OF A TRUE GLADIATOR

I Honor before victory.

II Protect the innocent.

III Respect even the defeated enemy.

IV Fight for your kingdom, not your ego.

V True strength is born from discipline.

Place your hand on your heart.

Speak the words.

Live the Code.

A gladiator is not made by victory, but by the oath he keeps.

THE SACRED OATH

SPOKEN BEFORE THE ARENA

I enter the Arena without hatred. I carry strength without cruelty. I defend the innocent, honor the fallen, and respect the defeated. I fight for my kingdom, never for my pride. If victory demands my honor, I choose honor.

A gladiator may lose a battle...

but one who
abandons his honor,
loses forever.”

THE FINAL MEASURE

HONOR ABOVE VICTORY

A defeated warrior may rise again. A dishonored champion has already lost.

prevented wars between the great kingdoms.

Disputes were settled in the Arena, where honor had more value than blood.

Over time, the Code was no longer exclusive to gladiators and became the symbol that united all of Valekor.

LEGACY

THE STANDARD OUTLIVES THE CHAMPION

The Code became the moral foundation of the Grand Arena. Kingdoms trusted its champions because every oath placed peace above conquest.

the foundation of every legend,
and the light that guides
Valekor through the darkness.

Remember it.
Live it.
Be the legend.

THE CODE LIVES ON

EVERY GENERATION SWEARS IT ANEW

Masters teach it. Dragon judges defend it. Citizens invoke it. The Five Principles remain the line between a fighter and a legend.

ONE ARENA - MANY KINGDOMS

RIVALS BENEATH ONE LAW

Armor, banners, and bloodlines may differ, but every recognized Gladiator answers to the same sacred promise.
